Project SECC 2015-2017 is co-organized by South Karelia Social and Health Care District (Eksote) and Saimaa UAS with multidisciplinary clusters.

Aim of the Project SECC 2015-2017

The aim of the study is to identify the area of preparedness development needs of health and social services. One of the project's objectives is to create an operational scenario that can be modelled for the entire nation.

Symposium 17th September 2015 in Lappeenranta

The symposium brings together experts including administrators, academics and students as well as stakeholders working in the field of regional threats and preparedness.

The symposium consists of keynote speakers' inspiring presentations and functional workshops. The purpose of the day is to share and gather information alongside generating ideas of new innovations in the area of comprehensive security.

Methodology

- To study few major incidents from Finnish history of past incidents that have tested the systems capacity to cope the situation
- The Symposium benchmark the current situation in South-Karelia district by outcome that participants produce during simulations
- SECC multidisciplinary clusters that are generated by project, study through scenario (that will be performed by emergency management rehearsal in autumn 2016) the future challenges and needs for development in South-Karelia's preparedness
